

Please insert the following Abstract as a separate page after the claims.

ABSTRACT

A device for measuring, monitoring and/or controlling a temperature, in particular the temperature of the wall of an injection mold with the aid of a measuring element which passes a detector body through a corresponding orifice at least to the external walls thereof. The measuring element is blocked in the detector body and/or in a crimping bush which is disposed prior to said detector body.